Today was good.
Today was fun.

Tomorrow is another one!
(Dr. Seuss)

When I think of the Halifax Grammar School, the image of the Lighthouse comes to mind. Like the Lighthouse, the School is – to me—a beacon of hope in the world of education. With our fiftieth anniversary on the horizon, HGS stands tall as a living example of excellence in education. With public education facing challenges, our school may provide an aid to navigation through those often difficult, choppy waters. In embracing the International Baccalaureate, we are already lighting the way for other schools here in Nova Scotia.

Can you imagine a time when the Grammar School is truly recognized as a “lighthouse school” throughout Nova Scotia – and far beyond? That is certainly a lofty goal. But, it is my fondest hope that – in the years ahead — our School will become more widely known as a beacon of hope, a model of excellence, and an aid to navigating our way through the future.

A Message from Dr. Bennett ...

"We Keep the Light"

Opening day, September 6, 2005, seems like only yesterday. Mounting the stage at our Opening Assembly, I surveyed the sea of faces of students and faculty and felt the flush of excitement, tinged with a hint of anxiety. Coming new to the Grammar School, I sensed the friendliness and openness so characteristic of the Maritimes. Looking around, I saw students and faculty exchanging opening day greetings, completely at ease with one another. Breaking out into the Grammar School "Fight Song" brought us all together and produced smiles all around. After eight years of living in a fast-paced city like Montreal, HGS and Halifax represented a welcome change for me.

Since arriving, I have rediscovered my fascination with lighthouses. The Lighthouse is, of course, one of the most enduring symbols of Nova Scotia and the East Coast. One lighthouse enthusiast, Rip Irwin, the author of Lighthouses and Lights of Nova Scotia (2003), captured well the appeal and allure of the lighthouse: "Nothing stirs the seafarer more than the first glimpse of a lighthouse after a lengthy voyage at sea. Since 280 B.C., when the first lighthouse was built in Egypt, these beacons of hope in storm-tossed seas have warned mariners of dangers or guided ships into safe havens."

When I think of the Halifax Grammar School, the image of the Lighthouse comes to mind. Like the Lighthouse, the School is – to me – a beacon of hope in the world of education. With our fiftieth anniversary on the horizon, HGS stands tall as a living example of excellence in education. With public education facing challenges, our school may provide an aid to navigation through those difficult, choppy waters. In embracing the International Baccalaureate, we are already lighting the way for other schools here in Nova Scotia.

Over the past year, the School has kept the light burning. We have celebrated the 25th Anniversary of the Terry Fox Run with a real outpouring of generosity and welcomed Canadian artist Alex Colville back for a truly riveting Remembrance Day commemoration. In January, the School hosted a lively Town Hall and Mock Federal Election that generated considerable buzz and was featured in the Chronicle Herald. The Prep Poetry Festival and the musical Hi, Ho, It's Robin Hood showcased the many talents of our youngest pupils. Our Senior Girls Varsity Basketball team won international acclaim at the KSA Classic in Orlando, Florida, and challenged cross-town rivals QEH all season, right down to the wire. In debating, we retained the coveted Dr. Moses Cody Tournament Championship and scored an upset to win the Nova Scotia Junior High Debating Championship. Our Senior School musical Guys and Dolls literally swept audiences away and HGS skiers scaled new heights, winning the Nova Scotia Provincial Championship.

Students came to the top of the agenda this year. We convened a Student Forum on Future Directions and moved forward with a new Student Leadership and Participation model. Student elections were held in April 2006 to fill an expanded roster of leadership opportunities. Our Student Council will be greatly expanded to include class representatives from Grades 7 to 12. A new Board of Stewards has been established and our House System rejuvenated through strengthened organization. All of this is aimed at engaging and empowering students in our Middle and Senior Schools.

Student achievements abound at the Grammar School. Flipping through these pages, you will see countless examples of students striving for excellence as well as riding the ups and downs of daily school life. Over the past year, Nicole Roda, Nigel Chapman and the Student Council have staged dances and events that added much to the enjoyment of student life. House spirit ran high thanks to the infectious enthusiasm of Julia Kent. Behind them all the way was a dedicated faculty team, led by Matthew Moffatt, Gayle Baillie, Laura Brock, and Paul Brinkhurst.

Our yearbook provides a vivid picture of school life from the student's perspective. Many thanks to The Grammarian editorial team, ably guided by Ms. Jackie Greenough, for capturing the HGS spirit and preserving the memories.

A Message from Mr. Moffatt ...

As I write, our Senior School is fast approaching the end of its voyage. For the Senior Three crew Keji is a distant memory, and you have just wrapped up a successful sleepover to raise money for the prom. Now most of you are becoming frantic as you prepare for your IB exams; but nevertheless still hoping to fit another dance and a coffee house into these last few days. Watching you navigate the rough waters of adolescence in the Middle School and then in the Senior School has been a pleasure. To witness the choices some of you make as you try to avoid crashing on the rocks, while wrestling the helm away from your parents has been fascinating to say the least. I hope that we, your teachers, have succeeded in illuminating not only your minds but the treacherous shoals and rocky coasts that endanger every intrepid sailor. I hope that when you embark on the next leg of your voyage, you will go forward with the most valuable instrument, a strong moral compass, and with the academic tools to succeed in university. Here's wishing you fair winds and following seas as you sail off to conquer new horizons.

2005/06 Student Council

It was an eclectic student council this year, but we were united under one goal: to be remembered, and to make our last year at HGS a blast. We sure had fun, and even if you didn't, you can't say we'll be forgotten. No one could forget the infamous dance that hosted over 600 people, the Halloween entrance-way, the Dating Game, or intramurals, to name a few. This was a year of change altogether; Ms. Baillie was our new staff-advisor, Dr. Bennett was our new Headmaster, we combined the House System and the Student Council, and we introduced a new Student Council member halfway through the year. Huge thanks goes out to Gay Silverman, Mr. Moffat, Ms. Baillie, and Dr. Bennett for all their time and effort this year, because we couldn't have done it without them. We'd like to take this opportunity to congratulate our fellow graduates, and wish them all the best in the years to come. To all those that still have time left at HGS, good luck and stick with it. Go out into the world and make a difference.

Love,

Julia Kent, House Major
Jamie Giffin, Head of Finance
Felix Crux, Head of Operations
Nicole Roda, Head Girl
Nigel Chapman, Head Boy

"Years"
Stan Sokolenko – S2

As fruitlessly as counting stars,
We number our years.
Trying hopelessly to confine the continuity; define eternity.
What is a minute, a month, a year?
What does it matter if they go by?
As irreversible and merciless as water wearing away at the cliff face,
They brand the hardest soul.
Why count the bullets as they leave the chamber?
What possible reason could there be?
Like prisoners, we count the lashes on our naked backs,
Until the sentence is carried out.
We are not prisoners though!
Why should we live as men convicted?
Every day we write the stories of our lives.
Why should we count how many pages till the end?
Do not mark places; enjoy their passage,
As lengthy or as short as they may be.
Do not slow your tale with counting pages,
Like a river it should flow.
Drink it deep and do not ask for seconds,
Why does it matter where it goes?

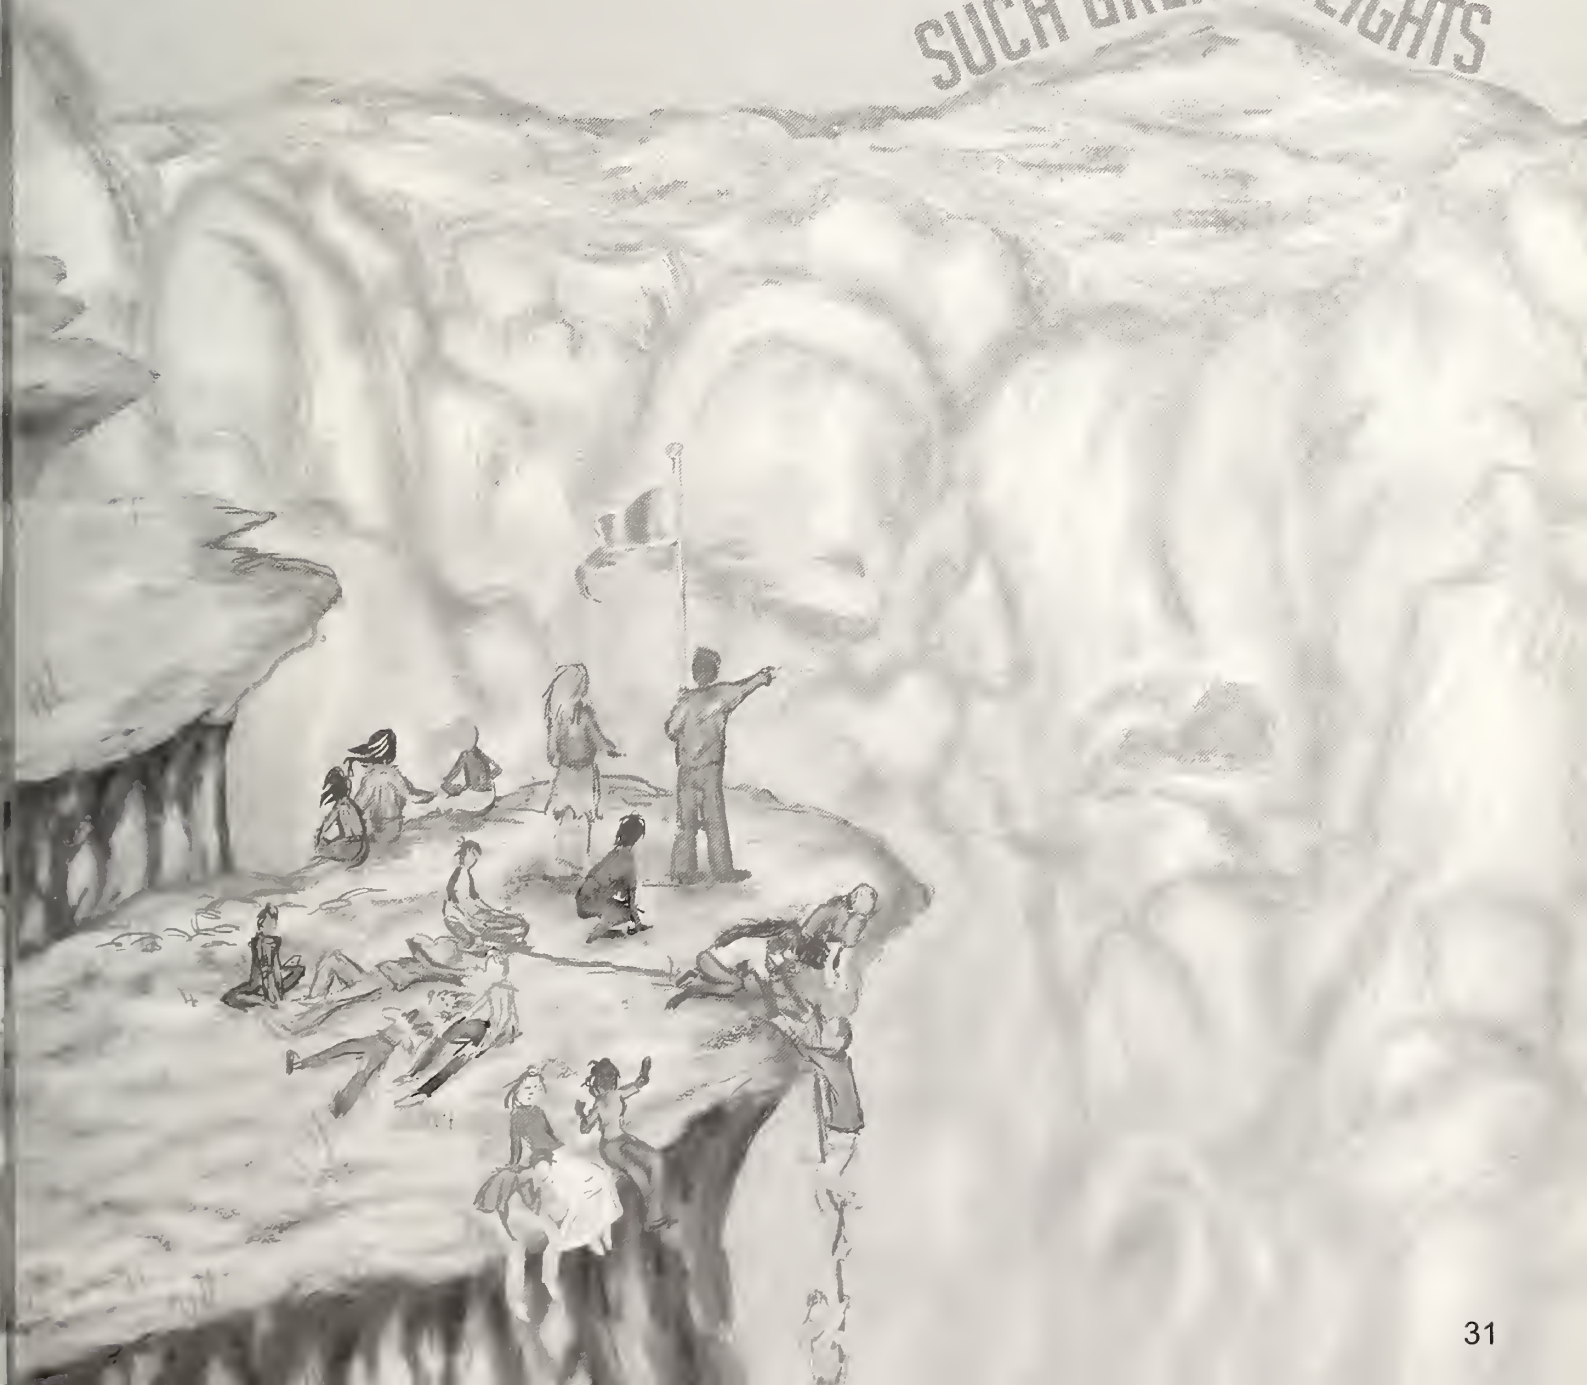

Writing samples taken from:
The Gryphon Review, 1st Edition, October 2005.

"The Teary Drops"
Anahita Jalilvand

The teary drops
Heavy and cold
Running down
A glossy frame
Long strands
Of delicate beads
Clear, impure
Reflect the light
A lonely stare
From within Wooden bars
To shield the drops
Still it pours
Still she stares
The window
Now her face
The rain her tears.

I'm a "SENIOR!"

Congratulations Class of 2006 !

taylor aikins

This intelligent, slightly crazed, legend of a man has been an essential aspect of the Grammar atmosphere on and off throughout the years, but he arrived to stay for good in the ninth grade. If one were to describe Taylor to someone who hadn't met him, he would be a cross between the Incredible Hulk and Clint Eastwood with a dash of the two old guys from the Muppets. He knows what's up when it comes to voting in federal elections, and loves a good argument. Mr. Aikins and I are seasoned adventurers and have had many unforgettable outings in our high school years; including but most certainly not limited to, hunting lions and bears in the Oxford movie theatre, lugging down Quinpool, playing spy, fighting each other with allen keys, inciting riots, running car rallies and becoming part of the student council. He has been known to sleep on the bench outside the school on the occasional evening, out of sheer dedication to the institution. Taylor's also the kind of person that can calm a tense or hostile situation if one of his friends (like me) gets himself in over his head. An avid hockey and rugby player, Taylor loves a whole variety of sport, including sailing (the best sport) and surfing. Without this all-around genius/party animal I don't know how I would have made it through high school without losing my sanity and I'm sure the Grammar experience would not have been nearly as enjoyable. Cheers my friend, good luck with your sail around the world. – Giff

How to describe Mathew Archibald? A late bloomer and world-class sailor. Will Mat ever reach the 150-pound weight barrier? Doubt it, but he will surely embark upon big things in life. Mat can be found working on his B- ball skills in the gym, flirting with girls on the phone, or relaxing in his hot tub. He has muscles like a 10-year old girl but the work ethic of Rocky Balboa, which kind of makes up for it. If you have ever hung out with Mat your sides will explode with laughter from lines of any mainstream comedy. But if you've ever slept with him (no vulgar relation) he will never wake up, not even for a bear... true story.... no joke. The man really likes to sleep. He is not very intimidating on land but he is all business on the water, a force to be reckoned with. Well however he does it, it works for him and I'm sure such athletic traits will lead him to great things in the future. Mat's loving personality will always make him an unforgettable friend. – BW & AR

Corey Bourque first stepped into the Tower Road campus as a little grade eight child. Immature as any boy in junior high, his favourite activities included throwing meat at vegetarians and petty theft. Corey is bigger now, due to regular push-ups and sit-ups, but still shorter than most of the girls. Also, in a monumental event, as monumental as Mount Rushmore, one day David Bakvis idly introduced Corey to the song Aces High by Iron Maiden while waiting for a bus. Since then, every sentence Corey has ever uttered has contained the word "metal" at least once. Sometimes as many as sixteen times. But there's nothing wrong with that, because metal is the ultimate musical experience. As Corey said, "Listening to metal is like you have your face voluntarily beaten in: you asked for it, but your ears might hurt a little after." Actually, Corey never said that. But being a religious guy, he might have mentioned that Jesus said "Ask and you shall receive." But in all seriousness, Corey will probably end up a good guy, a good husband, and a good orthodontist.

marena brinkhurst

Since the glorious days of Grade 7, Marena Francis Evelyn Brinkhurst has graced the halls of Grammar with her presence. Since then, as we all know, she's proven herself in just about every facet imaginable –her academics, creativity, and involvement within the community have wowed all of us. A master of time-management, anyone can tell you that her productivity is something to be admired. And yet, it's amazing how someone with such a level head can be so quirky as well. Marena has a spontaneous side like you wouldn't believe; always up for some nutty adventure, the two of us have gotten into numerous hilarious situations. And though I often make fun of her tree-hugging ways and her romantic adventures...or...misadventures... in typical Marena-fashion she takes my abuse with grace. Never lacking in crazy ideas, you can always be sure that spending time with Marena will end in hilarity. But few people may know of her many talents outside the school, whether her mad skills at the Fox Trot or her ability to recount every line of Lord of the Rings. Yet her qualities as a friend far exceed anything I could describe in 300 words –dependable, open-minded, and never judgmental, she is someone you can talk to about anything. Marena loves to laugh and make others laugh as well. Somehow she knows how to make everyone happy, whether via chocolate or a trip to Perks, and for that we love her. Aa' menealle nauva calen ar' malta, Marena.

Olyvia, Olyvia, Olyvia, what can I say about you? How we became friends on the first day of school in grade eleven after realizing that we both had the same exact schedule. From that day on we kept reminding ourselves how "our lives would've been much easier if we went to public school". The moments we had in HL math, and how you always drove Mr. Moffatt insane with your questions after each math class. Of course, you know you are known for your "Ewwwwwww" and "Mommmy!!" every time something goes wrong. Olyvia is always going to be famous for her "Asian stuff" and her cute "Asian face in the pictures". Whenever we think of Olyvia, we are always going to remember her as the innocent angel missing her halo. Olyvia, got involved in many things during these 2 years, just to get those CAS hours. Olyvia is a hard worker and this effects all those around her. With her determination, she encouraged others to get through Grammar. Btw, don't forget to keep up with your neatness, by keeping the pages in your binder numbered. I hope that you also realize that the long plane ride from Indonesia to Canada every summer was worth it for all of the unforgettable memories that were created during grade 11 and 12. Good luck with your future goals of becoming a great engineer. I am sure you are going to succeed no matter where you go.

"Old friends are best unless you catch a new one fit to make an old one out of." - Sarah Orne Jewett

It's amazing that we've known each other for less than three years; it's felt like forever...in a good way! But really I think even three days could have been enough for us to get as close as we are. You understand me and my craziness, which is quite a talent in itself! You know me so well, and you're the one I go to when I need to talk things out. You are a talented and beautiful dancer; you're intelligent, full of life and sensitive. Your strength to overcome adversity is extraordinary, even though you're a fragile snowflake. These three years have been insane, but we finally made it out alive (against all odds). Going through the stress of Grammar would not have been the same without you, and it's great to have someone to plot how to get out of the next day of school with. Being your friend is easy, you've always been there for me and you're one of the few people that I know I can always trust. You put your heart into everything and everyone you meet, your feelings are genuine, a trait that others can't help but admire. I know you will succeed in what you love, and I want you to be happy (and more healthy) - you deserve it all.

You'll always be my fellow Grammar Girlie and Daddy's princess and I'll always 1) love you, 2) be your BFFAEAE.... 3) be there for you, 4) see number one. Lots of Love - Kate xoxoxoxoxo

"A friend is one who knows us, but loves us anyway." - Ralph Waldo Emerson (a quote we live by!)

September, 1993. Nigel Chapman, a young lad with a golden fop of hair and the charm and grace of a young Macauley Caulken, entered HGS for the first time. Perhaps that was a wonderful life-changing day for Nigel, perhaps not; it doesn't matter. Because that day in itself was but one of the many snowflakes that would culminate into the veritable avalanche that was Nigel's scholastic career. But let us jump back to reality, where times have changed since the glory days of Blossom. Macauley is playing more mature roles; Nigel's hair has darkened slightly, and his charm and grace are closer to that of young Christopher Walken. Some of you may frown at a comparison to the famous face of Hannibal Lector. This is because you are narrow-minded. Nigel, like Christopher, has an amazing talent of body movement and a joy de vivre that is rarely paralleled and often admired. Nigel's popularity stems not simply from comedy or a willingness to eat worms, but from a glorious mixture of disarming kindness, striking intelligence, bizarre wit, and uninhibited charm. With exuberantly billowing hair and a Renaissance passion for all subjects, he excels in all fields of human endeavor, with the exception of the Debating Society, which he consistently fails to attend. His tenure as Head Boy has been marked by the introduction of new ties, an honour well deserved. He has grown tall of stature, plump of spirit, and rosy of cheek through his determination to eat injustice for breakfast, while constantly maintaining his excellent sense of humour and passion for the surreal and absurd. To paraphrase Winston Churchill, "I cannot forecast to you the action of Nigel. It is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

In short, Nigel is the modern Renaissance Man, to be admired and respected by all those who have ever basked in his presence.

nigel chapman

jiasi chen

This fun-loving and loveable girl first graced HGS' halls in September of Grade Eight immediately challenging my sought-after position as reigning nerd. Her natural charm, beauty, and enthusiasm, though, soon won me over, helped along by numerous choruses of "L'homme araignee." You can always count on Jiasi to put an optimistic spin on the direst of angsty teenage situations, most of which involve our serious lack of progress in Chrono Trigger! Her years at Grammar will be remembered for the many moments of hilarity her antics provided. We won't forget the times she hid in Mr. Moffatt's office, locked herself out of her bedroom, fought viciously over a Burger King crown, conspired to bury Ana's glasses in the Mr. Big's. Down to earth but somehow still buoyantly soaring high above us all, this girl symbolizes everything that is orange and sunny in the world! Though she knows she'll never triumph in the JC-Lin wars, Jiasi deserves to kick butt in everything else she does. When she makes the Top 10 List of Brightest, Happiest, and Most Successful Women in the Universe, we all claim the right to say, "We told you so!" Good luck with everything, Jiasi, and remember that there's always a sheep in the box.

"Priya is a machine!"

She may have a photographic memory and hold the school's title of "Fastest In-Class Essay Writer", but Priya is much more than a crazy academic. Constantly supportive of others and humble about her qualities, it's a good thing she isn't writing this. It might never be recorded how talented and wonderful, with her disarming and unassuming smile, Priya is. Sure, she's amazingly organized (FTC can vouch for that!), but she'd be the first to tell you how goofy she can be! Her crazy antics make laughter ring through the school (she was Miss "Most Talkative" 2003, after all) and she brightens any conversation with insight and spontaneous, creative advice (even if it has debateable relevance to the topic in question). A girl who can talk to anyone, has had the same pencil case since grade 3, salsa dance late into the night, find the humour in something everyday (especially herself), and organize a mean sub-program besides, Priya is a multitasking machine, even if she is a little distracting in physics class.

Priya chowdhury

helen chuana

Oh Helen aka Helly, Helena, Asian Princess and MY Asian sista, I don't know what I would have done without you at Grammar! You've stuck with me for all these years, we've cried together, laughed together (a TON) and took many a picture of us making basically every facial expression anyone can think of. It all started back in grade 9, when by the end of the year we were definitely tight. When grade 10 came around, and we would spend a ton of time trying to get through the intense work (having the same classes) and then complaining about it to Mrs. Baillie, we became the best of friends. Our years were filled with lunch crams, and late night/early morning calls which didn't really help because we were half asleep already- "what's going on????!!!!" And how we began to think similarly, which hurt...our heads. We've gone through so many sayings: "EWWW", "LITTERALLEMENT", "UMM...", "QUESTION". But I can always rely on a "DON'T EVEN! I did SOO bad; like, I'm not even joking." Our free time was filled with McDonald's and Timmy's trips, in double shotty of course, criticizing Jonny's driving. And your bro/sis fights with Jonny about the most insignificant things. And then our infamous preparations for various events- Quebec, Dances, especially the animal purse and the red bull that we drank a tad too much of (haha heart attack). And Keji ... where me, you and Bawd pigged out on 70 bucks worth of food. Our appreciation for the art of the donair: just wrapped, or on pizza at the mall, my house or at the greekfest. And the goodbye dinner and airport with the Acosta's! I know that you don't want a hug when you're about to cry, but I'm always here for you, and I know graduation won't ever harm our friendship. BFF, L.M. P.S. Don't ever wrinkle her page.

Well, where to begin at this long-awaited ending? Thirteen years ago seems the best place to start, when I first walked into HGS. In all that time, not too much seems to have changed:

1) I haven't lost my peculiar knack for creating awkward silences through non-sequiturs, or just by saying something tactless 2) I still have a strange fascination with flying - by the time I was five I knew how to pilot an aeroplane, but I still have not yet gotten around to learning how to drive a car 3) I continue to have the same bland, nondescript appearance, which explains and reveals a lot of things... 4) I still belt out trivial information and strange quotations when I feel like filling silence - 537 good souls perished in the Battle of Britain, just in case you wanted to know I flatter myself that I have made an impression on a few people. Perhaps I should be thinking about what to do next in my life, but for some reason I have always either been zealously enthusiastic about something or totally indifferent to it - almost never in between - and I never have been able to shift my future, important as it may be, into that first slot. Perhaps I'll just throw it all to the wind and become a mad inventor working with Mike Rockwood in a dark basement after all! I honestly cannot pinpoint why, though I've spent many a moment, on what has made me want to stay here at HGS. Perhaps I just became used to it - I conditioned myself. (Who says ToK taught me nothing?) Oh, well, enough of my rambles - I'm sure that you have something better to do than read this pure, uncut drivel.

felix crux

It seemed to me an insurmountable challenge to restrict my experiences at this school to under 300 words, but Lord knows I've had worse, so we shall proceed. Having left Bicentennial school at grade 9 to finish my high school career at the Grammar school, I now look back on a dramatically different person than my current persona. At times this school has been a haven and vent for my abilities, and at other times, little better than a Soviet Gulag camp; nevertheless, these three years past have seen me take on the roles of novelist, chief fiction editor for the literary review, clarinetist in band ensemble, short film action hero, disgruntled Russian revolutionary (who, I believe, spends some time in a Gulag camp of sorts) and, lately, coffee house performer. I could never have imagined the difference the school made. I suppose I ought now to make some mention here of the friends I've made: the mass of great people I could "never tally, never name, not even if I had ten tongues and ten mouths, a tireless voice and the heart inside me bronze." (Robert Fagles, translated from Homer's The Iliad). Such memorable characters the likes of whom one is never likely to encounter elsewhere in the world. I'll break write-up convention here and make no mention of the very memorable yet extremely silly incidents of the years, for it can come to no good. I'll only say that if university is this crazy, then Douglas Adams must have been right: the universe can only be the product of a twisted and nonsensical imagination.

"Most people who know Felix Crux will tell you that he will either be a great leader or a horrible delinquent; not merely because he is cunning, but because he has the slightly intimidating air of someone who is smarter than you. This is because he is. He is, upon closer inspection, like lovely stone: cold and hard from afar, but beautiful and radiant from up close. Knowing this, one must cherish Felix for the charming anomaly that he is, and remember him exactly as he wants you to, because a legend requires cohesion. We must all begin to build the legend of Felix now, because one day it will be such a tale as to shake tomorrow's children into a state of rapture and awe." – H.K.

alice d'eon

I didn't think we would make it, but here we are. Looking into the future in ten years time, I can picture Alice sitting in her apartment in New York, drinking her 8th cup of coffee of the day thinking back to her two outrageous years at Grammar and laughing.

She quickly made friends in grade 11 and she continued to expand her group this year. She has met tons of unique people and has developed a "special" appreciation for certain teachers. I had the privilege of Alice's company in every class last year and we had good times. I never knew what to expect and it was always a blast. There have been a couple of definite highlights, including the Keji Trip and the Quebec Trip. Having faced so many difficult emotional obstacles in the last two years, Ali has shown great strength and perseverance by upholding her enormous capacity to love. Alice, my dear, we've definitely had some great times together, whether we were in Halifax, Chester or Quebec. Even though we've only been friends for such a short time, it honestly feels like it's been forever! Whenever I'm in need of good advice, you are always the friend I know I can turn to. I love you Al. - Nic

Bawd, thanks for gracing us with your hawt presence beginning in grade 11. You're intense cram sessions the period before your tests definitely must have made the power shopping trips after school a lot more fun. We would be lost without having someone to complain to all the time, and having you give us the same advice every time – "Hun, you don't need him... you could do SO much better". Keji was a blast, especially with you. It was a great time to get to know you a lot better. Our endless nights lying under the stars at night, while pigging out, and the big green bubble and forgetting your bathing suit at home will be things that we'll always remember from that trip.

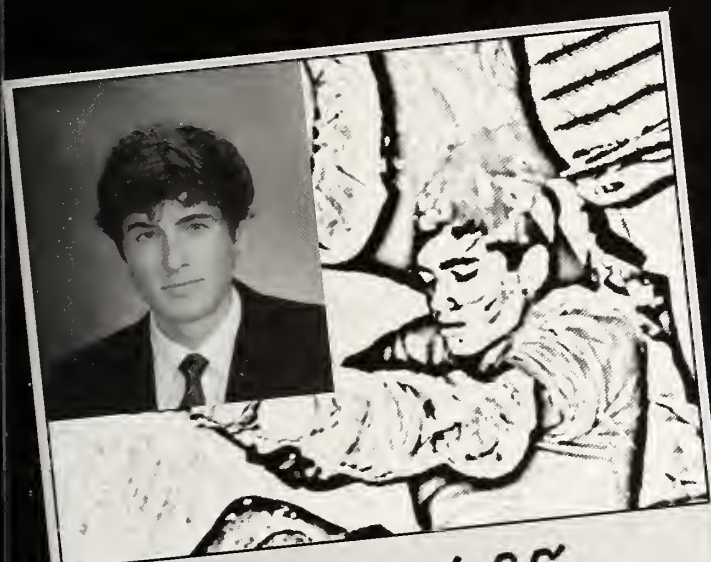

We know that this girl is going to make it big in the big business world with her looks and her awesome personality. Anyone who wasn't lucky enough to know this girl was really missing out. We know that we will be "tight" for a long time and for life. She's our Asian sista, and we will always love this chick.

BFF - Love always, LM and HC

P.S. We don't know how you survived Ramadan watching us pig out at McDonald's ... and YES, we are serious.

jamie giffin

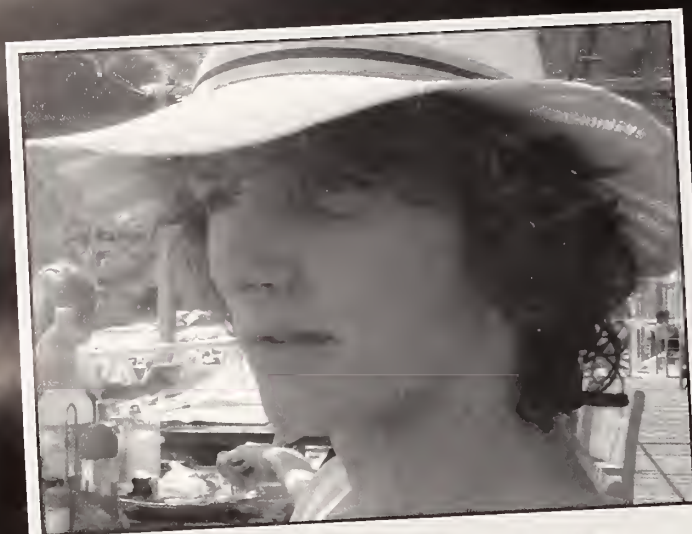

When I was first acquainted with Jamie Giffin, we did not spend much time together for some unknown, unfortunate reason. The things I heard about this man were that he did not like to have a lot of fun and just played video games all day. WELL, something radical must of happened while I was gone because the Giffin I have known for the past three years is the essence of "good times" and when a good time is to be had, he will drop everything and be the first one there. Giffin has been through the good time and the bad but always seems to still be having a good time in the end no matter what; hey, he's even been there when trees turn to people or when a Viking war breaks out at Conrose park. All the good times would have had something missing if it weren't for our 1 Gifty 1. Giffin has always been there for everyone and will go far in life with his natural charm and his math skills of course. I am proud that Giffin dropped his video games and moved to Luke's or else I wouldn't have a great friendship that exists today. Thanks Giff -MH

Jamie is a great guy who can only match his intelligence with his great personality. I am truly blessed to have a friend that is this loyal, and I will always be there for you. -LHM

One of my first memories with Tim goes back to Grade Nine, when he was the first to understand my obsession with a certain obscure actor that few others appreciated. From there, it didn't take long for us to realize how oddly similar we were, and there have been way too many memories over the years to recount. What strikes me the most about Tim is his sense of humour –he has the amazing ability to make anything funny, and many attempts at a serious conversation with him have ended in uncontrollable bouts of laughter. As a result, he's one of the first people many of us turn to when we're feeling down about anything, knowing that he'll always be able to make us crack a smile. But Tim has a serious side as well, and is willing to dedicate himself to any project he takes on, whether he's in net for his soccer team or commanding the stage in the school musical. Over the years Tim has become one of my closest friends –someone who will put up with my numerous complaints and offer great advice about anything that's troubling me. He's come through for his friends time and time again, and I can't remember all of the times Tim kept us from going insane when things started to stress us out. He's a great listener and I couldn't ask for a better friend, whether he's cracking me up with some ridiculous pun, or simply hearing me out when I've got something on my mind. In short, thanks Tim, for making these years at Grammar all the more enjoyable for so many of us.

charlie grant

In Grade 10 HGS received a student that it was sure not to forget, Charlie Grant. Now, one may assume that Charlie is nothing more than a chiseled jaw line and dimples, however, this is definitely not the case. Charlie is an amazing musician, athlete, and a kind soul. Since we have been friends he has been one of the most positive influences in my life. Charlie has made me realize my love for music. Basically, whether it is playing hockey, playing guitar, or using a 'Shock-Your-Abs' machine on his face, Charlie performs like no other. There is a certain charm about him that you can't deny. It has been rumored that he could even convince Mr. Beazley to forget about significant figures. I don't know if it's his stunningly good looks or his mellifluous voice, but one thing is for sure, he has been given a great gift. It is certain that without Charlie we would all have an empty place in our hearts. He is a great guy with a great attitude, thanks for the music lessons. -LHM

"We should just all try to smile more," -C. Grant

From Venezuela to Oakville, Texas to Halifax, Carly has finally found her home, and thank goodness for that! This modest beauty has graced HGS with her presence for the last 6 years. Yeah maybe sometimes she'll forget to call the priest, or get too scared and ditch you to take cover in the corn stalks, but for the most part she is kinder than Tenderheart Lion himself, (hence her nickname, Care Bear)- not to mention a Gurreat friend. Despite an annoying nuzzle, and an often shockingly high pitched voice, it is "inconceivable!" to do anything but love this crazy girl. As arguably the best hug giver in the entire world, a simple hug from Bear will make any bad day seem brighter. Carly's sure to make you laugh, though usually not on purpose, and her playful tendencies make it very difficult to accomplish anything quickly - time is never really an issue for Carly, when it comes to, well, everything. She will never lose her passion for travel, or the scandalous adventures she embarks upon as a result: "It can come off you know..." Carly shall be remembered at HGS for her big beauteous smile and her contagious happiness. At the young ripe age of 17, Carly has already managed to have an incredible impact on the lives of so many. With her kind and caring nature, there is no question that she will go on to do great things all across the globe (that is, if she ever decides what university she wants to go to.) LYP. and BoBo.

nicole hammond

Nicole's unexpected late arrival at HGS brought many surprises along with her. Her confident and organized self allowed her to possess qualities that few of our friends had, which coaxed us to befriend her. Nicole first came off to me as someone who wouldn't want to be a part of our "group" because she was so pulled together and we were.....n. Every last detail of every moment in Nicole's life is planned out to a maximum and in the case of any changes occurring she feels the need to go through the plan over and over until it's drilled into everyone's heads. This planning is followed by a shrill of excitement where regardless of the occasion, Nicole is ALWAYS excited. Nicole's determination in life allows for her to wake up at late hours of the night for a quick work out, for a day without it would bring nightmares to her. The largest contributor to the quote list, as Nicole ALWAYS has something useful or intelligent to say, Nicole's life is complete. Well except for the undying question, "WHAT COMES WITH THE EGGS!?" Nicole is truly one of the greatest friends I have ever had. I can always depend on Nicole for one thing, that she'll always be a friend to everyone and I am personally honored to be included as one. CYA next year baby, there's so much more to look forward to! Let's embark on this next journey!

Mike 'Handsome' Hamson joined the Grammar school in Grade 7, but he soon returned to the woods (or Whistler as he calls it). The next time Mike appeared at Grammar was in grade 10. I was surprised to see that Mike had gone through puberty and become a full-grown bear. Bear and I quickly picked up our friendship where it had left off in Grade 7, and he began to teach me of the things he learnt in the woods (how to catch a salmon with your bare hands etc.). In return I introduced Mike to all my friends from Halifax (Giffin and my Parents). The three of us soon became inseparable, but stuff became a little awkward when I asked Mike to marry me (let's just say I didn't make anymore spur of the moment announcements). Mike is a hard worker, a great athlete, and most importantly, an amazing friend. Thanks for everything, I owe you more than I can ever repay you. -LHM

Mike Hamson is one of the most dapper chums in our year. This energetic fellow loves to search for bee hives to acquire his daily intake of honey and likes to eat raw salmon now and again. I have had the blessing to share many wonderful experiences with this character, such as watching foreign language how to cut your own hair videos at 3am, becoming a gremlin (actually), hunting lions with Taylor and I, braving a snowstorm to find pizza in the wee hours of the morning, waking up in the back of a truck in New Brunswick, and having him hunt me because he thought I was an animal. Have a good year Mike; I hope I end up at the University you choose to hibernate at next winter. - Giff

When I first moved here way back in grade seven I was immediately befriended by this witty character who seemed to have the ability to charm those grade 7 girls at an alarming rate. Not to my surprise, his dad was indeed a fisherman, being from Nova Scotia. However, Luke soon taught me that fishing was not the only thing to do in Nova Scotia; there were the train tracks, which is where we spent most of our grade 7 and where every conductor grew an everlasting hate for us. In two years our friendship was reunited once again the fun times never stopped from that point on.

On a more serious note, Luke has had an immensely positive impact on my life and had provided me with an unforgettable and everlasting friendship. This partly comes from his charming and funny personality and his ability to take anybody's bad day and make it an unforgettable one. These traits will undoubtedly lead Luke into a positive and successful life. Thanks Luke -MH

I'll start this off by saying that Luke MacDonald is basically a brother to me, putting up with my crazed antics over the years, allowing me to live at his house. There is no way to scratch the surface of the good times we've had through high school and before. A toast to Luke, Grammar and to the future. - Giff

My 1st memory of Jeanette was gr 9 math camp; that's where HGS all started for her. The soccer star was my first and best friend right from the start, and fortunately her braces didn't scare me off. We had everything in common: jokes, boys, secrets, music, and clothes. As we grew up we increasingly relied on each other; she kept all my secrets. Every year she got more beautiful and I valued and trusted even more. I'll never forget and I couldn't replace you, Jeanette, because you made everything worthwhile.

I came to grammar at the same time as Jeanette, and the stories of the soccer star had me instantly intimidated. I detest soccer, so who'd have known we'd be best friends? I'm so glad she never followed through with her yearly threats to leave! She's the best friend you could ask for, and we've got many memories yet to come. - JK & LP

For a recent addition to the Grammar roster, Nathanael (or more affectionately "Nate Dogg") has done extremely well for himself. Nate entered the ranks of the HGS task force ready to do what it takes to succeed, but it became apparent very fast that he already has the success gene within him. Since then, he's been working hard at leaving his mark on the HGS legacy, which he is sure to do. He stole our hearts with his many contributions to lounge conversations, and he sometimes intrigued us with his smug silence; but in the end, Nathanael just goes to show that there are still good people left in the world. Countless drives to Waverley to pick him up in the summer of '05 had given me plenty of time to appreciate what a good friend he's been; and if he ever gets his driver's license, I'm sure he'll do the same for me. Nathanael is very patient and he has good people skills, which is probably why he's so well liked. He is a great friend, and a great addition to the French movie team. If nothing else, he has helped the other HGS students broaden their horizons, and he has also thrown out more good writing than anyone else. It is indisputable that Nathanael will leave his mark not only on HGS, but on the world.

julia kent

Karl Marx once said "Last words are for fools who never said enough." This could never be said about Julia. I remember the day I met Julia, at good ol' PAJH, and of course, she was sportin' the turtleneck tan top. The girl I met that day, in no way compares to the person Julia has become, as she will forever be the one who understands. This blonde has made her mark on and off the soccer field leaving a lasting impression on Grammar's musical scene, and after the fierce competition, her need to get out house-points will never be fulfilled. I cannot imagine going through school without Julia and will cherish our friendship for the many years to come, as I am positive it will only continue to grow. Grade 9 is when Julia entered HGS and quickly made a first impression on everyone. With her bright blond hair and her great personality, how could anyone miss her? Whoever would have thought that a 'ghetto' girl from Cranberry Crew and a hick from Hatchet Lake would become best friend. Through thick and thin she was with me the whole way. From heartbreak to math camp, to 'turbulence', to ganging up on girls on the soccer field, could always count on her. Whether I needed a shoulder to cry on, or someone to laugh with, Julia was the girl. Her weird habits like melting blocks of cheese or her odd love for European history is what makes her unique and if possibly maybe weirder than me. Julia will accomplish anything she puts her mind to. This girl is one of a kind. -JH & LP is the skipper of the Grammar School ship for many years, Hilary has consistently impressed. From her prowess in the Debating Society to her insatiable enthusiasm for associating herself with shady and unpleasant characters, she remains unparalleled in the annals of recent history. Soon to become part of the mythos and logos of modern society, the indomitable passions of a thousand flames conspire in her to become a modern Lysistrata. Her classic proportions, combined with an attempt at Renaissance intellect, which is doomed to failure due to an offhand rejection of mathematics, the purest of sciences, have defined her endlessly. "What if a demon were to creep after you one night, in your loneliest loneliness, and say, 'This life which you live must be lived by you once again and innumerable times more; and every pain and joy and thought and sigh must come again to you, all in the same sequence. The eternal hourglass will again be turned and you with it, dust of the dust!' Would you throw yourself down and gnash your teeth and curse that demon? Or would you answer, 'Never have I heard anything more divine'?" -- Friedrich Nietzsche

sian laing

In the future, when I look back on my experience at Grammar, I know the thought that will pop up with a vengeance will be how incredibly lucky I was to have Sian there with me. When Sian first graced the halls of grammar she quickly won the hearts of several of the school's handsome young gentlemen. Even with the redonk workload, Sian never let her frazzlement or stress ruin her good times or pretty smile. She made her natural pizzazz known to every one around her and where ever you are you can always hear her talking, whether you know what she's talking about, is a whole other story. If she's not stressing about homework she's the life of the party, actively participating in "never have I ever". She has a very liberal view on politics and has even been called a socialist. As a house captain she always comes up with creative ideas like the underwear relay and takes part in all activities with the fullest enthusiasm. Til death do us part - MOW

courtney laurie

After our falling out last year, it didn't take me long to realize that Courtney is irreplaceable. Most people fight over their differences, well, we don't have any. We're both willing to sit in the HGS hallways singing White Flag at the top of our lungs while everyone yells at us to shut up, or celebrate the fact that we're studying for exams. We eat more than the entire grade put together, mainly because we eat their food, and I'm pretty sure we were the only two people who dressed as guys on our second day of high school. More importantly, we're always both willing to take each other back no matter what we'd been through. I'll never regret that day I agreed to be her best friend. After being such a hit in grade ten, our comeback in grade 12 brought only one comment "oh god, here goes grade ten again." Never wanting to put up a fight, she is the most dependable person I know. Especially when it comes to her sensible boyfriend and outrageous best friend, who get along SO WELL, she wants everyone to be happy. I can't finish this off without giving some mention of court's ever-popular athletic "abilities." Courtney doesn't strike many people as the "balling" type, but if we'll remember anything, it's Courtney on the Basketball Court. What more can I say, you've made this last year unforgettable, I love you so much. Have a blast next year! "I don't know where my future is, but I know it's with you." Your best friend, Connie.

Wow ... Jonny Lu, probably the most generous person around, stares out into space dreaming about the skyline GT-R. While barely getting any sleep last night, we all know that he'll certainly make up for it in class. When the lunch bell sounds at 12:48 everyday, you would hear Jonny yelling "MESO HUNGY." As we all know, Jonny is a self-proclaimed "fatty". His typical lunch menu includes 2 pieces of pizza, poutine, chips, a can of pop, a twix bar, and a package of poptarts (and when he's REALLY "hungry", he'll buy a bacon/cheese hamburger to add on top). Typical Jonny excuses are "I'm fat", "It's cause I'm asian", and "That's not how you do it in China!" In HL math, Jonny is SOOOO focused and ingenious that he's able to do complex and hardcore math problems "in his face". If you know Jonny well enough, you'll know that Jonny-isms include "what?", "WOWWW", "lollerskates!", "roflcakes", and many many more. Jonny, you'll probably go down as one of the first Asians to start on the ball team. But that's totally like "not allowed".

PS. If you ever happen to become poor in your life, remember that you can always buy a pimped out Honda Civic and put a turbo-charger in it. -HC, LM, BG :)

"Hershel is the beginning and the end. The alpha and omega. How can one define such perfection? And I ask myself, "can mine ears deceive me?" For the people cry "Hershel!" and weave praise of untold beauty."

The logical culmination of thousands of years of the evolution of human culture, Hershel Macaulay really likes math. In between posting mathematical questions from the Internet on FirstClass, he also sails the seas as a scurvy seadog, warding off the elements with biting sarcasm. His tooting and banging contributions to modern music have earmarked him as a true Renaissance man who can handle the arts just as well as he twiddles the sciences. Running rings around classical conceptions of humour, Hershel also makes some of the most famous accidental puns known to mankind. Please be warned that unions can strike at any time, and that Hershel is ready to stop them, the forward troops of rampant socialism, with sheer cold logic and vaguely ironic statements - "Therefore Mr. Moffatt Exists!"

The first day I met Scott, I was amazed by three things: his kitchen (and the abundance of kitchen utensils), his bathroom and his heated floors. Since then, four years have past and the list has grown exponentially. I am constantly reminded of what a strong-willed and independent person he is and how he is always committing his time for others and not himself. I could never forget the countless hours we've spent in his kitchen. He would always be cooking and I would always be over his shoulder eating, trying to follow along... or our ten minutes of power shopping at the mall!

You can find Scott running track, paddling a warcane and "freeing the children" from time to time. This summer he will be traveling to Kenya where I know he will touch the hearts of all there, just as he's done here in Canada. I'll miss you, Scotty!

There are over 6.5 billion people on this earth. Many of them are kind; many of them are loyal; and many of them are tall, lanky guys who can make pasta from scratch. But only one person I know is all three with a side dish of perfection. That person is Scott MacPhee, my best friend. Love you!

-Jenn Nguyen

It was grade nine I realized Connie and I were meant to be and the agreement upon our best friendship was sealed. We entered high school, with a different attitude than others; our loud and "outgoing" ways were not dealt with for long. Connie's wardrobe somewhat stood out, nevertheless no one ever commented, it was what was expected of her, but Luke's grandmother will beg to differ. She'd always find a way to pull herself together and thankfully landed herself a boyfriend along the way. You can always tell what kind of mood, or emotion Connie is feeling. When she's excited she acts like a giggling 2 year old, and when she's under the weather- her eyes take the distinct shape of a line. Connie, you made Grammar a different place, and I know you'll make a statement wherever you go next year! Just don't forget. I'll be there for you. Love, your other half, your best friend, Courtney.

connie mcinnis

This techno-lovin' Russian goddess (aka Luda or Luce) and I go waaaaay back to grade 5 at good ol' John W. MacLeod. Growing up together in S-town, we soon found that we would both be going to Grammar for our high school years. This was just the beginnings of an amazing friendship. I definitely don't think that I would have survived these crazy three years without you and our late night/early morning phone calls at 3am (Ahhhh!! What's happening?!?!), our intense power study sessions, our quickie trips to Timmy's to pig out on lemon coconut squares while riding double shotty, and most importantly, our endless questions du jours.....literalement.

In her spare time, this Muse lova goes trick-or-treating, or sits at home eating her vitamins since they apparently taste SOOO good, while watching her daily scheduled Gilmore Chicks, gazing intently at THE hilariously funny bug picture before running off to flamenco or guitar.

We've had so many hilarious memories together, like the anti-socials in the tent, the bathtub incident, spending 4 hours in the bathroom getting ready to go out for dinner, our day 4 lunches at Jonny's, and the crazy time at the Greekfest and the Acosta's!!!! I'm sure that there will be many many more to come! Luda, I know you'll be successful in whatever you do, but if you happen to grow up to be a gardener, remember DON'T drop your plants all over the ground. The seeds might just fall out of the soil ;) Have fun next year and never forget about your Asian sista who's exactly 11 months older than you.

tim mitchell

Tim appeared on the Grammar scene at the beginning of grade eleven. His unruly hair, cloudy demeanor and fascinating Danish reputation made him stand out from the crowd. After a while, once we got to know the man behind the blackness, we found bowling clubs, the "Student Voice" and a wide variety of entertaining talents from music to crazy expressions. Tim is a model of the diverse and eclectic nature of Grammar, and added a little spunk to our days. Mr. Mitchell was completely successful in leaving his mark. However agitating and sarcastic he may be, there is no doubt he will succeed in whatever he desires. Keep sporting that smile as you look out onto the horizon of opportunity, Timothy. Love, Julia

Lauren O'Connor, also known as Bauren, Baloo, Ren Ren, and countless other nicknames, is not a girl you want to mess with (especially on the soccer field or basketball court). This feisty little athlete is as stubborn as an ox, yet impossibly easy to get along with. Lauren is an incredible friend who is always there to listen, no matter how many boy problems you might whine her way; not to mention the fact that she would never turn in a friend, her true partners in crime will always know that. On top of basketball, soccer, and the tremendous HGS workload, Lauren still manages to find time to visit Bedford, jam to oldies, and watch, oh you know, only 2 or 3 hours of TV a night. Be it random photo shoots, 3am swims in the lake, soccer in the hallway, or survivor board game showdowns, whenever Lauren is involved, you are sure to have a blast. Lauren O'Connor is a big party rolled into one little body, and no matter what the occasion, she'd rather dance with you than talk with you (especially if Reensefield is involved). Whatever path she chooses to take in life, Lauren is sure to succeed, and have a whole fan club (with t-shirts) close behind. "Let's take this party to the library!" G-Unit. talía orr

Talia Isabel Orr is a rebel at heart. Living in Bedford for most of her life, what else could one expect? Whether it be sneaking past Reens at 4 am, driving to Truro in 35 minutes flat, or "sleeping at Cassy's." You always manage to have a good time with Talia, as her social events calendar is off the charts, often filled with acoustic guitar campfires and drives around town, jammin' to the Kings (often with a pit stop to McDonalds for a Rolo McFlurry). Through her determination this talented girl has managed (with a few breakdowns here and there) to juggle basketball, swimming, teaching, guitar, babysitting, and the huge Grammar workload, somehow managing to stay on the honor roll. Talia is always there to listen, and is always prepared to help anyone in need. She is full of spirit, and with her contagious laugh, has the ability to make everyone around her happy. Now for a few words of advice: No matter what the argument is, she's going to win it, so give up early to save some time. Never challenge her to a game of Mario, because you'll always lose. And be prepared! This girl loves to live life on the edge. No matter where she ends up I know she'll be having a blast. You know everybody's "diggin' the Talia Train". xo LO

Laura and Julia go back to gr. 7, at PAJH in Dartmouth. It was only in gr. 9 when Laura came to HGS that Julia got to know her. They were cultured in Dartmouthian ways, so they always had fun. Laura grew and changed so much for the better, and she knows only Julia can relate.

Jeanette also came to Grammar in gr. 9, and that's when she met Laura. During the first few weeks Jeanette knew her as "the girl from Dartmouth who played basketball", but as the year continued she became Jeanette's best friend. High School definitely would not have been the same without Laura. She was always by Jeanette's side with her large beautiful smile. One of Laura's best traits is that she definitely knows how to have a good time, even on a 10-hour plane ride when the little Chinese boy next to you is getting sick into a see-through cup the whole way.

Where will Laura be in 10 years? Anywhere she wants to be. This is the life you deserve baby! We love you Laura, and we'll always be here. You've made high school unforgettable. -JK & JH

margaret perrie

Margaret Perrie is the one who can be seen striding up the halls of Grammar, smiling sunnily at everyone she meets. Since joining us in grade 9, Margo, like the delicious mango, has lived the life of any true vegetated fruit of a Grammarian: dying of hunger, falling asleep, doing math homework, doodling on paper, and being totally clueless—all at the same time! Her amazing art skills have left their mark on this school, but most of all she'll be remembered for her cheerful charm and the gentle ease with which she's won all of our hearts. You're going places, Margo, and you know it!

Lisse 'alus ent laema 'lalaith tenna lle aelouva!

Oh Plummer...what is there to say about Adrian. Mr.Plummer came to the Grammar School in grade 5 and I can clearly remember becoming acquainted with this character, he shocked all of us with his crazy antics and loud booming voice, he had and has a hilarious laugh which seemed to always be resounding through the halls. I remember Adrian was at first shy but that quickly wore off and he became well known throughout the class. Adrian's house is always a good place to go, now made even better with the absence of Kent, who used to torture Adrian in front of us. His fridge is always full of pogo's and pop and he has the most extensive movie collection that I have seen. Adrian loves to party with us but his face can sometimes be a rarity at a party, between hockey, soccer and basketball he stays pretty busy not to mention homework. Plummer is definitely one of my favorite people to see at a dance or a party. I wish you the best of luck man, I know you'll do well wherever you are. -T.A.

chris robbins

What is there to say about someone like Chris? Many a strange incident has occurred in your presence, dating all the way back to the age of ninth grade when we coincidentally were sent to the same table in French class. Little did I know what a life altering experience this would prove to be. From there we became friends, and from friends we became partners in rhyme (The Gang Posse for life!). And even though our group rap effort never really took off, you're still MC squared in our hearts. Later on, we would have many interesting experiences together, like helping the "Little Caesars" employees set up shop at 11:00 am. Or our night of extravagant "Dining with a Hobo" who taught us many valuable life lessons over a box of Timbits, like how to make a drink out of a record. His birthday party in the summer before grade ten, which turned into disaster when some of his guests ended up lost in deepest darkest Dartmouth. And who could forget about our extensive collection of high quality French film. All in all, you've been there every time the van has had 10+ people in it and I hope that the good times will keep on rolling. I foresee Chris writing a "Get Rich Quick" book and then finally fulfilling his dream of marrying a Mexican woman who will cook him all the Tacos he can eat.
Your Friend, Nick

Nicole and I are members of a special society that exists within the Grammar school. A society that is made up of only a select few. We have never been poisoned by foolish things like public schools or having friends. We go by the name 'Lifers.' We have been here since the Moxon days and we even pre-date Mr. Messenger. We have seen student councils rise and fall under their own weight. Many of us have dropped out because of stress, and the few who made it until today lack certain skills, like talking to girls or tying our shoes. However, this is not a problem when you have skills like knowing significant figures or using a TI-83 calculating device with terrifying precision and speed. We have known each other for 13 years...that's longer than Murphy has been able to grow a beard, and its been a fun session at Grammar, eh? More seriously, Nicole 'Choda' Roda is an excellent student, athlete, Head Girl, and friend. Good luck in University. -LHM

I've known Nicole since I arrived at the Grammar School in grade 7, and she has been a good friend and an excellent leader on the student council. She's always willing to help out if you don't understand something (or if you didn't take legible notes, like me), and she's always around to help out with student council endeavors, even if she isn't required to. An all around athlete and intelligent student, Nicole succeeds in just about everything she gets involved in. She was a great person to work with on the executive, and I'm glad to have had her as the Head Girl. Best of luck to you next year Nicole, although you'll excel even without it. - Giff

alex russell

Alex Russell, what a guy, really who doesn't like him.... Speak now or forever hold your peace. Alex is a longtime member of the Grammar School and short time member of The Game fan club. Well if you lovely ladies are looking for him he's usually, at the gym, studying profusely or being a social butterfly at all social events. What is it about the "A-Train"? Well he is successful at whatever he does from golf in the summer to French at school; it doesn't really matter because he is one reliable fella. Where do Alex's goals lie? Well I once heard him say that he will aspire to be "fitter than fifty." Don't be afraid to make him angry because you'll end up laughing with him. Here's a free lesson: Russell can't ever hold a grudge or be furious for more than 12 seconds. So when you meet the infamous Alexander Russell, don't be scared of his wolverine stature and crew cut. Look to him as a life long friend who will always be smiling right beside you. - BW&MA

kate skinner

Kate never fails to amaze all of us in how she overcomes all odds and keeps a smile on her face when all is tumbling down around her. Although she is hard on herself, she keeps her face lifted and bright for all of her friends to see. She truly is the glue that keeps us all together and, on many days, sane. She has an optimistic side of her that no one can dismiss that contributes to her playful and caring personality. She thrives in the world of dance as both an incredible role model (teacher) and as a stunning and magnifying dancer herself. She attracts the attention of all around her as soon as she begins to move. Katie is so committed to everything she does, I am certain that she will succeed in whatever she chooses to do. Good luck!

martin smith

I've known Martin since we were 5 years old. I still can't believe we've managed to stay alive long enough to find ourselves in our senior year. When I think back on the times I've spent with Martin, what stands out most is his laugh. Martin has one of the funniest laughs out of anyone I know, and for some reason whenever he laughs, his whole body seems to shake and convulse...I dunno, you kinda have to see it. My first memory of Martin dates back to our innocent years that we spent at Sacred Heart. I remember finding an appreciation for Martin and his laugh from the very beginning. It all started in the cafeteria, when myself and some of my classmates discovered that if you made Martin laugh while he was drinking milk his nose turned into a fountain of milk...at that point I knew we were gonna be friends. Martin has always been a little bit eccentric and it seemed to get worse by the time we were in grade 6. I remember Martin had these cheezwhiz sandwiches he would eat everyday and as a rule of thumb he would wipe them on the bottom of his shoes before eating them at lunch. This list could go on and on but I have a word count I must meet. When I returned in grade 9 we spent almost every Friday night seeing a movie, and although we had fun being little nerds in grade 10 our attentions were diverted away from the magic of Hollywood towards the magic of having a real social life. With the addition of Hamson and Charlie in grade 10 we found ourselves more and more in situations that now render our memories useless, at times I regret corrupting Martin, but the amount of good times that have happened as a result are incomparable. What I can say for sure of the last 3 years I've spent with you is that I've never had more fun and I'm glad you were right by me the whole time, it seems that every weekend and summer just got better and better, especially this summer...race week...Next year as we both move our separate ways I know you'll have a blast wherever you are.

laurent stoffyn

After thirteen years here, you ask yourself the question: "was it worth it?" The obvious answer is, "I don't know." Sure, there's all those advantages for my future that they keep telling me about, and that IB diploma at the end of it all (the carrot on the end of the stick?), but was it really worth sweating blood for countless hours worrying about this apparently indispensable piece of paper? Perhaps, but what I believe it all comes down to is experience. It's experience that makes a person. I guess the school was good for some experience. But it's when you leave school, at the end of the day, at the end of the year, or at the end, that the real experience comes, when what you have on the line is more than a diploma. I've heard it said that in our society everyone gets three educations: one from school, one from parents, and one from real life; and the last one always goes against the first two. So in the end, all I can say that I made the best I could of each.

lin watt

She never would let me borrow her Rubik's cube. Or let us steal food from the middle school canteen ("broken" food only!) Or tell me how to beat the Helmasaur King in one of our shameful telephone Zelda sessions. But, fast forward a bit now, and you'll find that over the years, Lin's grown to be a very sweet person with a beautiful, warm personality and a head on her shoulders. This witty, purple- and punctuation-loving girl is always around for a good talk and a big hug! Just don't disturb her when she is in her bubble - luckily, she'll let off sporadic "GARRGGH" and "RAWWRRR" growls to warn you off. We'll miss her in her usual position front row dead centre in Chem, compulsively organizing the clothes department at Winners, or pondering the answer to the deep philosophical question $(-2)^2 = ?$ But seriously, this girl's got talents, and whatever she goes on to do, we know she'll succeed (whether it's finally getting Mr. Moffatt to prove everything about math or otherwise). Thank you for adding so much to our lives, Lin! You're an amazing friend that none of us will ever be able to forget. You know all this, but we'll tell you again: you're beautiful, you're smart, you're moldy, and we love you!

Colin quietly started his life at HGS in M4, quickly making friends with other Star Wars fans and finishing fanatics. The next year saw the beginning of his campaign to turn his fellow classmates to "the dark side" with numerous games of poker, President, and Cheat. Shortly thereafter, he was spotted in the company of a beautiful girl and ever since then he's rarely been seen without her! Once his reclusive shell was cracked, Colin's never-ceasing sarcasm, and love of math. Colin's a space-loving brainiac. He's been here since he was five years old. Slow to anger, loyal, incredibly smart, and with a twisted sense of humour, Colin will be remembered for his early morning arrivals, nihilistic rants, and mistaken conviction that Star Wars is better than Star Trek.

Brendan is easily recognized for his silky long shaggy hair and has been here since grade seven. You can often find him either in the gym, on the water in his laser or happily cozied up next to his girlfriend. Brendan has quite the appetite for social gatherings and whenever he seems to be lost, he always returns with a smile. Brendan has continuously dominated the skiing world in the Maritimes, and when he can't satisfy his craving for activity on the slopes he is often training in his laser for some upcoming major event. Brendan's goals seem all too often to be achieved by sheer determination. An angry or determined Brendan is not a Brendan you want to tango with. His iPod library is filled with all the old time classics, like the classic time he found himself dumbfounded in front of two very engaging women in rural Quebec. Some summertime fun includes road trips to Kingston, attempting some crazy stunts off the breakwater, hangin' with the sailing junkies and some on water comedy skits by Dane Cook ("How did Mary die?"). There is no telling where Brendan's hard work and dedication will take him. Go get 'em big guy the world is waiting! – MA & AR

sahar yousefi

From the moment I first saw this lovable Sahoora, I knew one thing about her - penguins for life! She leads a secret double life as an Iranian food and penguin hunter, on the prowl for chicken, samosas, kababs, ice cream with nuts, and the secrets of the Haligonian penguin. Did I mention cheesecake? In the daytime, Sahar masquerades as a wonderful person who is very informed about a multitude of humanitarian and political issues, a product of her incessant reading. Her passion for world issues is only matched by her love of foreign films, and she's always up for a good hashing of any issue! The Sahoora also knows how to have a great deal of fun and can commonly be found being blackmailed by Uncommon Grounds, freaking out over a certain pair of biker shorts, or plotting ways to marry Haagen AND Daaz! She is sweet, bouncy, eager to experience different ideas, and always up for a good laugh :) Sahar, you are an amazing person, and you're going to go far in life - don't ever forget it! We'll be visiting you at your future villa in Tuscany! Ciao bella! - Jiasi Chen

Hockey was indeed a force this year at HGS, even though we played only exhibition games and tournaments rather than league play. 20 players formed the nucleus of our club with players from all the junior high grades. We "enjoyed" participating in over 25 practices as well as 16 games including Silver Medal placings at both the Armbrae and Kings Edgehill tournaments. Our overall record was 9 wins, 6 losses and a tie - Outstanding !!!

A special thanks to all those involved especially the players, the parents, the coaches and of course, Dr. Michael Butt.

Respectfully submitted,
Steve Stairs, Head Coach
